SECOND DAY OF THE SCHUTZENFEST. The Eagle Shooting-First Prize Wen by the Carolinas-Heavy Firing-On the Tight Rope-Amusements, &c.

Yesterday morning dawned bright and clear, portending another pleasant day for the merry-makers at the German Festival. At an early hour the riflemen and their families were to be seen driving up to the Platz, and soon the grounds and booths were again alive and filled with people. By degrees the visitors began to arrive, and poured into the gateway in a steady stream, which increased in volumes as the day wore on. The sharp breeze from the northeast put those little pests, the sand files, completely hors du combat, and throughout the grounds bevies of young girls, noisy small boys and quiet couples could be seen enjoying themselves according to their various bents. The small people surrounded the carousals, and made the welkin ring with shouts of glee as they went careering around upon the flery, untamed rocking horses. Others played games upon the thick carpet of grass, and young couples of maturer ages strolled around in the shade of the trees or sat watching the picturesque scene from the convenient benches beneath the splendid oaks, which form the most conspicuous ornaments in the front part of the grounds.

Target shooting, as usual, formed the chief attraction of the day for the riflemen, and as early as nine o'clock the sharp cracking of the rifles announced that the marksmen had begun business. The regular targets worked with a precision and regularity which reflected high credit upon the arrangements made by Mr. F. Ansel, the veteran target-master. EAGLE SHOOTING.

The eagle was also placed upon the top of the mast, at a distance of a little less than two hundred yards from the booth, and the shooting at the royal bird begun in the order fixed by the drawing on the preceding day. As the members were called, those who were there stepped forward and took their shots, while those who were absent lost their turn. The shooting at the bird was of the most exciting nature, and for some time the royal plumage remained unruffled. About half-past twelve p'clock he began to show signs of distress when seen through a telescope, and soon a part of the crown was ahot away. The beak and wing were next brought down by Mr. F. Von Santen, but, as the crown was the mark for the time, the prize for the beak and wing reverts to the club. The shooting continued, and the head and crown were next shot away by Mr. Eilison A. Smythe, of the Carolina Rifle Club. The shot was made with the common Winchester rifle, and the marksman secured the congratulations of having won the first prize as he came back from the marsh with the larger part of the crown, which had fallen to the shot. As the head was not the part shot at for the time, this prize also reverts to the club. This success lent new life to the eagle shooting, and the bird suffered correspondingly. The next mark was the ball held in the right claw, which was brought to the ground in handsome style by a shot from Mr. L. Dunnemann, one of the ex-kings of the club.

The bird stood under a heavy fire for the rest of the day, but retained his corporosity without any further loss of limb. The sceptre in the left claw is the next at which the riflemen are striving.

THE TARGET OF HONOR

was also put up at the usual distance, to be shot at between the hours of one and two o'clock P. M. The target is eighteen inches square, with a white bull's-eye in the centre four inches in diameter. Each member of the German Rifle Club is entitled to a single shot at the target, and all of the prizes presented to the club will be given to the best shots made at this target. Eight shots were fired at it yesterday, only four of which struck the target. These four were all in the green, and not one touched the bull's-eye. In addition to the Singer's sewing machine, the silk hat from Mr. ANOTHER VALUABLE PRESENT has been sent to the club by the well-known firm of Messrs. Barkhouse Bros. & Co., of Louisville, Ky. This is neither more nor less than a half-barrel of their celebrated Golddust whiskey. The whiskey is a pure Kentucky article, of fine flavor, and will form one of the most valuable prizes to be contended for on the target of honor. There will doubtless be some close shooting done for this valuable prize. A SHARP CONTEST for the first prize at the regular target shooting is in progress, and grows daily more close. Yesterday the two crack shots were at work early and late, and between the two they scored over one hundred centre shots. As the shooting progresses their aim becomes more accurate, and if the contest is kept up the number of centres made by each during the week will be something unusual in the annals of shooting festivals. The total number of centre shots made on the first day by all the marksmen was one hundred and twenty-seven, and yesterday two hundred and fifty-five. The Carolina's are getting the hang of it too, and some of their members carry a goodly number of centres, which show a vast improvement over last year's shooting. Towards four o'clock began to arrive in still larger numbers. The trains from the city were filled with a living freight of all ages and both sexes, and every moment the omnibuses, dog-carts and impromptu wagon-hacks deposited their loads of passengers at the gate. Prominent among these vehicles is the Robert- Douglass, a new and stately carry-all put upon the route by the enterprising Mr. Gates. The vehicle is commodious, and built like a street-car. It is nearly finished within, and the running ourtains of light blue cloth around the open sides give it an air of inviting coolness which a pedestrian cannot resist. The steamer of the Mount Pleasant Ferry Company also furnished another pleasant mode of reaching the Platz, of which a large number of visitors took advantage. A side entrance to the grounds is kept open for the especial benefit of the latter. When the crowd was at its height,

PROFESSOR BOND made his appearance in fancy costume, and shouts from every side announced that the tight-rope performance was about to begin. Straightway hundreds of heads were thrown back into a star-gazing, neck-breaking position, and all watched the movements of the professor as he ran nimbly up the ladder and made his appearance on the top of the main building. From the ridge of the roof, on the north end, a wire had been stretched to the top of a loity pine, some sixty yards off. The wind was blowing a strong breeze, but the daring funambulist passed and repassed over the tense wire with perfect ease. A second time he appeared with his pole, and, to the horror of the weak-nerved, the lower part of his body, from the walst downward, was enveloped in a strong crocus bag. With this impediment he accomplished the distance to the pine and back in safety, while the crowd below held their breath in the anticipation of some dire catastrophe. A third time he appeared, and on his lofty peach swaggered of Augusta, accidentally shot himself in the along over the wire, dressed se an old thigh last Monday, inflicting a severe but not woman, with a most intolerable Grecian bend. | dangerous wound.

At the end of this, Professor Bond (who seemed to be perfectly satisfied with his lease of fife) once more walked to the centre of the open space and began skinning innumerable cats, and performing other gymnastic feate, with all the composure of a turner with in three feet of the ground. These diversions wers hailed with repeated cheers. The

OTHER AMUSEMENTS continued in full blast. The climbers of the greasy pole were out in force, and seemed never tired of assaying their unctuous task. Six little darkies were placed upon a bench and each furnished with a cigar, with a reward of five cents for the one who first finished the weed. All light up and puff away like steam engines, when suddenly a cigar explodes with a cloud of smoke, and the halfchoking smoker hurries on to the end. The others smoke more warily, but meet in turn with the same discomfiture amid the shouts and laughter of the crowd.

The charging at the bucket is kept up as if the tilters enjoyed the wetting as much as the surrounding crowd did to see them drenched. Hunting for an egg in an enclosed space by some six or seven blindfolded urchins, each armed with a long switch, is another favorite diversion; and continuous hurdle races, by small boys enveloped in sacks, afford a neverfalling subject for laughter, as the competitors board, in consequence of the boat's sinking, struggle along and roll over in their anxiety to be first in and win the prize. In one of the booths a band of negro minstrels are performing on the bones, tamborine and banjo, and in another the visitor is diverted by the uncouth antics of a colored youth dressed up after the fashion of an ape, and looking the character to the life. In every part of the extensive grounds some amusement is in progress, and wherever the visitor turns shouts of laughter salute his ears. Everybody is enjoying himself or herself, and the time passes away in the pleasantest manner. Later in the afternoon THE DANCING HALL was still better patronized than usual, and crowds of young people and old were tripping lightly to the sound of inspiring music. The lancing began at noon, and continued with unabated vigor until the shades of evening fell tast, and the crowd began to move off towards the trains waiting at the end of the avenue.

During the afternoon the visiting riflemen were handsomely entertained by their hosts, and passed a pleasant hour in the interchange of social compliments, &c. The number of visitors at the Fest was much larger than on the preceding day, and the whole appearance of the Platz was no lest brilliant. The arrangements, amusements and all the surroundings of the festival are all well managed. and the second day of the Fest passed off as pleasantly as the day before, and was voted unanimously a splendid success. AGAINST THE STATUTE .- Yesterday morning John Jones, a seaman from the American ship Nautilus, was brought before the United States commissioner, charged with infringing the United States statute by assaulting one of his officers with a deadly weapon while at sea on the voyage from New York. Jones was proved to have assaulted the second mate, H. Hughes, with a kinfe, and disabled him by almost cutting out the right eye. The prisoner was committed for trial at the May term of the United States District Court.

THE TOURNAMENT OF THE STEAM DEPART-MENT.-The various committees from the different companies of the Steam Fire Department met last evening, at the hall of Hook and Ladder Company, No. 2, in Wentworth street, President E. Willis in the chair. The objection made by several parties to the blocking up of Meeting street on the day of the parade was considered, and, after due discussion, it was determined to have the tournament on the 8th of May, in Meeting street, with the same start and run as last year. Messrs. O. Miscally, J. C. Sigwald, C. Massot, John Doyle, W. Davidson and J. E. Lafitte were appointed a committee to weigh the engines. The weighing will take place at the joot of Market street, on Saturday next, immediately after the annual inspection of the Fire Department by the Mayor and

Man Drowned in Ashley River. Yesterday afternoon the yacht Edith, with four persons on board, on a pleasure excur sion up the Ashley Elver, met with a mishap nearly opposite Colonel Wm. Bull's place. The party had left the Schutzenplatz on a sail, and the yacht was running close hauled, with a light breeze, when a colored man named Richard Prince fell overboard while walking along the leeward side of the boat. The yacht was brought about immediately and a rope was flung to him, when about ten yards off. He struck out and swam for about two minutes, but sank before the boat could be brought up to him. The deceased, who was intoxicated at the time of the accident, was a wbarfman, and resided in Vanderhorst street. He leaves a wife and three children.

A Sailor Drowned in the Harbor. Yesterday afternoon the sailing boat Annie, formerly the Belle, started from the city for Sullivan's Island, with Mr. John Hanlon and three seamen on board. The wind at the time was blowing with considerable force from the northeast, and the sea quite rough. When a short distance from Fort Ripley, about two miles below the city, the Annie was struck by a sharp flaw which capsized her. A struggle immediately ensued with those on to secure themselves by some por ion of the vessel. Mr. Hanlon and two seamen were enabled to do this by catching hold of the upper portion of the mast, which fortunately was not submerged, the water not being sufficiently deep; but Mr. James McCarty, a seaman, missing his hold, was drowned, notwithstanding the efforts of those around to aid him. After remaining on the sunken boat about an hour, Mr. Hanlon and the two seamen were taken off by a fishing boat and brought to the city. The tug Relief afterwards proceeded to the Annie and towed her to Atlantic wharves, where she has been raised.
